PORTFOLIO

We strive to produce a well-rounded and diverse selection of product offerings under our three labels: Patterson Cellars, Due Anni, and Forbidden. Patterson Cellars, our luxury line, offers single varietal and blended white and red wines, rosé, sparkling and dessert wines. Our Forbidden line is our mid-tier label and carries a red blend, white blend and rosé. We produce a value-priced white blend and red blend under the Due Anni label.

PRODUCTION

Currently producing 19,000 plus cases annually.

WINE CLUB

1,500 plus members, both local and nationwide, and continuing to grow.

VINEYARD SOURCES

We are fortunate to be able to source grapes from many of the best growers in Washington State. Each is selected for their ability to produce fruit that consistently highlights the characteristics unique to their vineyard and AVA: the big bold fruit of super-warm Red Mountain (Red Heaven, Ciel du Cheval, Quintessence, Corvus), the intense flavors from Horse Heaven Hills (Alder Ridge), the finesse from cooler sites further up Yakima Valley (Red Willow, Dineen, Allechant), and the softer plush fruit from Seven Hills Vineyard in the Walla Walla Valley. We select our fruit both for its distinctive stand-alone qualities and for what it can contribute to our blends.

DISTRIBUTION

Available regionally in wine shops, retailers and restaurants.

PATTERSON CELLARS DESSERT WINES

LATE HARVEST ROUSSANNE

TASTING NOTES: Clear and brilliant deep gold, our 71% Roussanne, 29% Viognier late harvest is blended to entice the senses with luscious apricot, tropical fruit, macadamia nut, and preserved lemon on the nose, and wild honey, poached pears, and pineapple upside-down cake on the palate. It's everything you imagine a late harvest wine to be – intense and sweet, of course – yet refined. This end of harvest delicacy is ultimately balanced by lively acidity and a lengthy, crisp finish.

PRODUCTION NOTES: Viognier from Elerding Vineyard was harvested in late October (the 31st) and pressed, yielding nectar with nearly 42% sugar. Roussanne from Willard Farms arrived November 6th, and also yielded nectar with roughly 42% sugar. Fermentation in barrels was kept cool and took roughly two months to complete, stopping naturally as the yeast eventually could not survive the combination of increasing alcohol and remaining residual sugars. Clarification took place in both barrel and subsequent tank blending, and bottling was completed in early May.

AVA: Yakima Valley

BLEND: 71% Roussanne, 29% Viognier

VINEYARDS: Willard Farms, Elerding

OAK: 100% barrel fermented in French oak, 65% new

ALCOHOL: 11.8%

PORT

TASTING NOTES: Deep ruby red in color, our 2017 Port once again features the traditional Portuguese varietals of Touriga Nacional, Souzão, and Tinta Cão, grown on three different sites in the Yakima Valley of Washington State. Black cherries and blackberries dominate the intense nose, with highlights of cedar, clove, vanilla beans and violets. The flavor too is dominated by dark cherries and blackberry compote, with complimentary orange zest and dark chocolate-covered toffee, all lingering long into the finish that eventually closes with delicate coffee notes.

PRODUCTION NOTES: We coordinated the pick and transportation of our traditional Port grapes from three different vineyards so that we could co-ferment them. They all arrived together at the winery on November 1. After two days of cold soaking, we started primary fermentation which lasted four days. Fermentation was halted with the addition of brandy we had aged in-house in new oak, and after another two days of soaking and extraction the wine was pressed into stainless steel tanks. After settling in the tanks it was barreled down into French oak and aged for 6 months before blending and bottling.

AVA: Columbia Valley

BLEND: 89% Touriga Nacional, 9% Souzão,
2% Tinta Cão

VINEYARDS: Red Heaven, Copeland, Sonrisa
